Problem

The intestine performs an essential waste disposal service for the body. If its activities are disrupted, whether by stress, inactivity, misuse of laxatives, a poor diet or other reasons, serious health problems can arise.

If the contents of the intestine are slow-moving for a lengthy period of time, a fermentation and decay process begins and the resulting substances pollute the body – a kind of self-pollution that leads to general symptoms such as:

- chronic constipation
- unexplained fatigue and loss of vitality

- mental disorders such as depression
- headaches and migraines
- excess weight, high blood pressure
- allergies, abscesses and boils
- rheumatic pain

Technical innovation to facilitate intestine care

A heavy diet, inactive daily routine, time pressures – there are many reasons why the intestine may rebel and which can lead to directly associated health problems. That's why cleansing colonic irrigations have been a favourite recourse in traditional medicine for thousands of years. Their efficiency and gentle effectiveness are still compelling today:

Demand for colonic irrigations is continually increasing.

Time, costs and demands for convenience are essential factors today. Innovative ideas are sought to enable colonic irrigation to meet these higher demands. ColonSolutions has therefore brought the revolutionary ColonClean irrigator to the market.
